

Recent Developments in Exponential Asymptotics for Nonlinear Partial Differential Equations

Christopher J. Howls
University of Southampton

In this talk we will outline some of the recent developments that have taken place in the application of exponential asymptotics to nonlinear partial differential equations. We will briefly recall the role of the higher order Stokes phenomenon and virtual caustics, but will also give a flavour of some more recent results.